El Camino Olvidado The "Forgotten Route"

Very popular between the 9th and 12th centuries, the Camino Olvidado, or 'Forgotten Route', is considered, together with the Camino Primitivo and Camino de la Costa, one of the oldest recorded routes to Santiago. A large part of the route crosses the southern valleys of the Cantabrian Mountains, between Bilbao and Villafranca del Bierzo (in the province of León), from where it continues on to Compostela alongside the Camino Francés (French Way).

It must have been used heavily until the end of the 11th century, when the push from the Christian kingdoms consolidated the frontier with the Moorish lands south of the River Douro and King Alfonso VI of León and Castile, conqueror of Toledo, promoted the Camino Francés under the Cluniac monks.

It is a route full of tradition, featuring amazing natural and cultural heritage, as well as outstanding gastronomy, where simple and hospitable people welcome pilgrims at the end of each stage.

A route that runs through mountains, established on ancient paths protected by towers and fortresses, and sheltered by the peaks from the constant attacks by the Moors.

An ancient route where history takes shape in burial mounds, dolmens and menhirs, Roman roads, medieval bridges, hidden castles, hallowed monasteries and pilgrim hospitals. Where stunningly gorgeous landscapes reveal their secrets in every colour, with every nuance. Where it is still possible to feel the thrill of seeing the Milky Way, with the whisper of the wind in the trees and murmur of the water.

A beautiful route, forgotten by time, and now restored for the future.

Ultra et suseia!
